COMMENTARY

Ottawa participates in UJA allocation debate

A little while ago in this column, I addressed the issue of how U.J.A. funds are split among local, national and Israel needs. At the time I mentioned that I hoped to see a thorough discussion of this topic take place in our community. This discussion has already begun. In order to further facilitate and encourage a healthy debate in our community, you will find in this issue of the Bulletin the first of two background articles on this subject written by our executive director, Stan Urman.

It will probably be difficult for any of us to easily come to a conclusion about this topic.

On the one hand, there is our age-old commitment to Eretz Yisroel and our great fortune to live in the generation that has seen the rebirth of Medinat Yisroel.

VAAD REPORT

DR. BERNARD DOLANSKY
PRESIDENT, VAAD HA'IR

On the other hand, we have pressing local needs, needs which if not met could threaten our survival as Jews in a diaspora where Jewish continuity is a major concern.

There are no easy answers but we must pose the right questions and participate in the debate. The way to do this is to read the articles and participate in some of the meetings we hope to organize with interested community groups.

This month, Stan Urman and I will be representing our community at the Council of Jewish Federations meetings in Toronto, where we will try to ensure that an adequate airing of this topic takes place at the national level.

While it may appear difficult to resolve this dilemma, the answer may lie in a quintessential Canadian solution - compromise. We may end up having to reapportion our resources so that our commitment to Israel remains clear while we allocate an adequate amount of money to assure that we continue to survive and flourish as Jews in Ottawa.

Signature on life must be genuine

A story is told of the great painter Pablo Picasso. It seems that an art dealer in Paris bought a painting signed "Picasso". When he took it to Picasso for authentication, the artist immediately declared it a fake.

Licking his wounds after a bad investment, the dealer summoned the courage to buy another painting signed by the master painter. Again he took it to Picasso for authentication. Picasso again declared it a fake. "But I myself was present when you painted this canvas. With my own eyes I saw you do it!" protested the dealer. Picasso merely shrugged and responded, "I often paint fakes."

We too often paint fakes. When we do not strive to grow in our professions we paint fakes. When we do not live up to our responsibilities we paint fakes. When we do not listen fully to our children's concerns we paint fakes. When we do not respond to our spouse's loneliness, our friend's pain, our neighbor's isolation we paint fakes.

We paint fakes when our perfunctory "How are you" does not wait or care for an answer. We paint fakes when we awaken in the morning without gratitude in our hearts for a warm home and decent meal. We paint fakes when in our workplace we maintain our status by undercutting both our colleagues and our best instincts. We paint fakes when we accept false relationships, false values and false community.

We declare ourselves "Jews in our hearts" but when are we "Jews in the synagogue"? We know the latest child-rearing techniques and elder care; we can defend "quality time" (because we have to). Meanwhile, the value of Jewish "study time" and "worship time" eludes us.

While we dutifully nag our children, "Have you done your Hebrew homework?" or remind our elders of medical appointments, we postpone family experiences, such as discussing together Jewish texts and ideas until the next day, the next week, the next... "when-ever". In short, it seems we make time to worship everything under the sun except the One who created the sun.

FROM THE PULPIT

RABBI IRWIN A. TANENBAUM

And most sadly, we know we are painting fakes.

Authentic living demands authentic knowing. The quest for that sense of direction in our shifting, uncertain era should motivate and guide us back to the source of true Jewish animus. The wisdom of our best and most creative thinkers awaits, inviting our discovery and participation. Through study and worship, we can inform our everyday concerns and reform our spiritual reach. Real living, as Jews, will call upon the best of our energies and the best of our souls.

Rabbi Zusya is said to have dreamed of standing before the Almighty on the Day of Judgment. As he described the dream to his students, Zusya said: "God did not ask me why was I not more like Moses. God asked why was I not more like Zusya." And the great rabbi wept.

Why are we not more like our authentic selves? Why do we stop short of all we can be? Far too much fakery abounds in the world today; let us not add to that sad repository our own imprimatur. We might never be as great in our efforts as the Picassos and Zusyas. However, our signature on life must be genuine.

Community should express its view

Dear Editor,

In the December 12, 1994 issue of the Bulletin, there was an interesting report concerning the General Assembly of the Council of Jewish Federations which was held in Denver this past November. Edgar Bronfman was quoted concerning his ideas about the "re-prioritization" of Jewish funds.

This prompted thinking about our situation in Ottawa. It is sad to admit, but our Jewish Community Centre, the hub of Jewish activity, is in an extremely dilapidated condition. Walls are literally crumbling, plaster is falling off in various parts of the structure and furnishings, which may have been acceptable in their day, are worn out. There are other local needs, such as Hillel Lodge, which cry out for a major infusion of funds.

Many individuals have proposed that for a limited period funds collected in Ottawa should remain here to attend to our own urgent needs. I propose that the Bulletin publish a survey/response form to determine the degree of community support for this proposal. As this is such an important issue, it seems appropriate that the entire community have the opportunity to express its view.

Sandra Levine Slover
Editor's response: This correspondence is most timely. As readers will note, both Vaad Ha'ir president, Dr. Bernard Dolansky and executive director Stan Urman address this very issue in their respective articles (see pages 2 and 3). Community opinion with respect to future allocation of UJA funds is being encouraged.

COMMUNITY DIALOGUE

Assessing future UJA allocations towards local/national/Israel needs

"וירא ה' אל אברם ויאמר: לזרעך אתן את הארץ הזאת..."

בראשית, פרק י"ב, פסוק ז'

"And the Lord appeared unto Abram and said: unto thy seed will I give this land..."

- Genesis, Chapter 12, Verse 7

The Jewish Community Council of Ottawa seeks to initiate a community-wide discussion on the allocation of UJA campaign proceeds for local/national/Israel needs. This article is the first in a two-part series on this subject that will appear in the Bulletin.

By Stan Urman,
Executive Director,
Jewish Community Council

The above quotation from Genesis is the first reference in the Bible suggesting the historical link of the Jewish people to the land of Israel. From that covenant, there is a delineated bond - an unbroken chain from the time of Abraham - from then, to now and (hopefully) for eternity.

There has never been a time in history when there were never any Jews living in Israel. Today, the majority of Jews may live in the diaspora, but in communities throughout the world, we read and are taught of the inextricable link that exists between the people of Israel and the land of Israel. The Jewish community of Ottawa, through its UJA campaigns; Project Renewal; through educational programs in its schools and synagogues; through the work of Israel based organizations; these and other endeavours ensure that Israel is an ever-present and important part of our Jewish lives here in Canada.

But here, as elsewhere, expressing the centrality of Israel in Jewish life is a notion that is being challenged more and more as time goes by.

More recently, one traditional way for diaspora Jews to express their commitment to Israel is by contributing to the annual United Jewish Appeal campaign. Each year, hundreds of millions of dollars are collected by Jewish communities throughout the world to support immigration and resettlement programs, as well as educational, cultural and social services in Israel.

In some North American communities, and indeed among some Israelis as well - there is a growing feeling that today, in light of the political and economic situation, there is less of a necessity for diaspora philanthropic dollars to flow to Israel. This is coupled with a mounting sense of urgency in the diaspora to support local institutions and programs which strengthen Jewish identity and continuity.

The past success of UJA federated campaigns was built on the notion that one gift covers a host of local and overseas needs which are constantly monitored and evaluated by educated and concerned lay leadership and that allocations are made in an impartial and apolitical manner. While the UJA campaign is North America's most successful philanthropic enterprise ever, the reality remains that many local communities are feeling the effects of a shortage of funds to do all that they need and want to do.

In the past, most Jewish communities tried to apportion UJA campaign proceeds at roughly 50% for Israel and 50% for local and national needs. More recently, many communities in the United States and Canada have begun to change this proportion, sending diminishing amounts of money to Israel and retaining more money for local agencies and programs.

The challenge of maintaining traditional levels of allocations to Israel - while ensuring viable communal institutions and programs locally - is compounded by the following recent trends:

- Stagnant or declining UJA campaigns;
- Difficulties in cash collection on pledges; and,
- Increased annual allocations to community beneficiary agencies.

I. Campaign Results

The stagnant or declining levels of UJA campaigns are demonstrated in the Chart A.

While the five year trends shows a drop of 0.83%, the decline from 1992 to 1993 was $12,421,806 (1.54%).

Canadian communities fared little better. (Chart B)

From 1991-1993, only three of 10 Canadian communities saw increases in their campaigns. Cumulatively, there was a decrease from 1991 to 1993 of close to $2 million, or a 2.2% reduction in the total amount of dollars raised in Canada.

II. Cash collections

Compounding the difficulty of maintaining pledges at previous years' levels, communities are now faced with the prospect of some donors not paying their pledges in a timely fashion, or at worst, asking for significant pledges to be written off. This causes considerable difficulties to communities which allocate funds based on pledges and at times have to wait years to recoup the money already disbursed or to try and find additional sources of funding when pledges remain unfulfilled.

The figures in Chart C outline the significance of this problem on a North American wide basis.

U.I.A. of Canada has recognized this growing concern. During the past 18 months, U.I.A. has had discussions with the communities of Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Vancouver, as well as Ottawa, regarding some form of assistance from U.I.A. Unfederated communities in Ontario and Western and Atlantic Canada are

ORGANIZATIONS AND PEOPLE

SHOPTALK, by Sunny Tavel

The work never stops, nor do the needs

Neither snow nor freezing rain stops us, the United Jewish Appeal of Ottawa volunteers, from fulfilling our mandate.

February and March will be filled with activities designed not only to fundraise but also to educate and inspire.

• On February 20, we are holding our eighth UJA Outreach function. This time we are travelling to Kanata where hosts Jodi and Dean Kathron and co-hosts Benita and Steven Baker, Collette and Stephen Grodinsky, and Elissa Lief and David Resnick invite their friends and neighbors to this social function designed to help newcomers to Ottawa and those who have always lived here to get to know one another and at the same time learn about our community.

• On February 24, we will hold a luncheon for our Hi-Tech Division, which encompasses the many members of our community who work in this fast-growing segment of Ottawa's economy. The guest speakers at the event will be His Excellency Ambassador Itzhak Shelef and Giora Meyuhass, Israel's Minister of Economic Development, posted with the New York City Israeli Consulate. More information on the event is available through our office (789-7306).

• On March 30, we will have an opportunity to thank our volunteers for all the work and effort put into this year's campaign. This traditional "kovod" evening will feature Garth Drabinsky, of cinema and theatre fame, who will talk about his new book Close to the Sun.

• On June 26, we will have our second Annual Golf Tournament. This year, it will be held at the Rideau View Golf and Country Club.

In addition to all of the preceding, we will conduct ongoing programs and activities, the Young Women's Leadership functions, the Business and Professional Women's programs, divisional meetings and clean-up telethons. We are also working on the Young Leadership Mission to Israel and Jordan and the Walkathon which will take place on May 28 - Yom Yerushalaim.

Our work never stops, but neither do our needs. Thank you for supporting all our efforts.

Israeli journalist Akiva Eldar to speak on January 31

Akiva Eldar, Washington bureau chief for the Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz and one of Israel's foremost journalists will be speaking at a Rosh Chodesh lecture at Machzikei Hadas Synagogue on Tuesday, January 31.

He will be discussing the question: "Will Peace in the Middle East Survive?"

The program begins at 6:30 pm and will include dinner. It is co-sponsored by the Israel Program Centre, Machzikei Hadas Congregation and the Jewish Community Centre.

Eldar studied political science, economics and psychology at Hebrew University. He worked briefly as spokesman for Teddy Kollek, mayor of Jerusalem, then moved into journalism. He was a reporter and editor for the Israel Broadcasting Service and worked for various organizations as a correspondent on social, political and domestic issues.

In 1983 Eldar joined the staff of Ha'aretz, Israel's leading newspaper, as a political and diplomatic correspondent and commentator, building a reputation for cogent analysis. Currently he is Washington's bureau chief for Ha'aretz. He also serves as consultant on Israeli political affairs for the CBS television network and on Abba Eban's television series on the history of Israel for PBS. He is a frequent commentator on Israeli and American television and radio programs.

Eldar's visit to Ottawa is a rare opportunity to learn about the beleaguered Middle East peace process from one of Israel's most knowledgeable journalists. The program, which includes a light meal, costs $8.00. To reserve your spot, please call Machzikei Hadas (521-9700), the JCC (789-1818) or the Israel Program Centre (789-5010).

Respecting religious diversity apparently not news

Editor's note: Reverend Tom Sherwood of the Orleans United Church has forwarded to the Bulletin a copy of his correspondence to the Ottawa Citizen written in response to an unfavorable editorial on Ottawa's Jewish community ("Unholy mess, December 10, 1994). According to Reverend Sherwood, "The following letter was sent to the editor of the Ottawa Citizen on December 14 and, for some reason, has not been published. I thought you and your readers might be interested."

Dear Editor,

Watch your language.

The sneering insinuation behind recent opinion pieces on the Ottawa Board of Education is placing you in pretty scary company.

Earlier this year, Jewish parents, students, teachers and community leaders told their local board of education that a significant number of children would miss the first two days of a school year. Other parents in other jurisdictions gave the same "heads up". Many school boards saw some wisdom in accommodating this unusual situation.

How have you described this? "A naive, clumsy and transparently political bid to placate a vocal minority... bowing to pressure" seems not only a sensational overstatement; it is more like inflammatory pamphleteering ("Unholy mess", December 10, 1994).

Today, we are all members of some minority group. That is the nature of such a diverse, pluralist society. Canada is, at best, a community of communities, a culture of cultures. Do you criticize a minority group for speaking? That is either ironic or racist or intellectually untenable.

What are you trying to do?

Having followed both the editorial commentary and news reporting on religious items, I suspect that you are not trying to represent facts objectively. I know that you are not adding thoughtfully to an important conversation in our community. So are you just trying to sell papers? Are you trying to stir up future news stories that may feature the stuff of front page headlines? What are the journalistic ethics of that approach? Or are you simply naive and clumsy, yourself, in allying with those racist and anti-Semitic elements of our society that seem to surface from time to time?

Not long ago, I led a prayer service in the rotunda of the Ottawa City Hall with the Imam, a rabbi, several priests and other Christian leaders. We prayed in Arabic, Hebrew, French, Greek and English, at least. The congregation was Protestant, Catholic, Orthodox, Jewish, Muslim and more. After we prayed together, we stayed together to talk. In that is hope, but not, apparently, news.

Vera Klein to chair Women's Division, State of Israel Bonds

Larry Hartman, general campaign chair, State of Israel Bonds, has announced the appointment of Vera Klein as chair of the Women's Division for the 1995 campaign.

Vera, who has played an active role in Women's Division for the last number of years, succeeds Sheila Hartman in the position.

In addition to raising a family and working as vice-president of Corporate Communications for the Boyd Group of Companies, Vera has always found time to serve countless communal and Israeli-based institutions over the course of many years.

She is past chair of Women's Division UJA, past president of Women's Federation and an executive member of the Ben Gurion University of the Negev.

Vera is the daughter of William and Lenke Grossman, whom she credits as being the main influence and the force behind her commitment to Jewish causes. Vera is married to Leslie Klein. The couple have three children, Jeremy, Andrew and Michael.

The 1995 Women's Division executive was recently installed at Kinneret, the residence of the ambassador of Israel to Canada. Serving with Vera are Ellen Fathi, vice chair, and committee members Ruth Aaron, Pearla Abtan, Alyce Baker, Dodo Bronstein, Ibolya Goldberg, Sheila Hartman, Robin Mader, Marion Mayman, Myra Presser, Bev Swedko and Gail Victor.

Congregation Beth Shalom West hires cantor/youth director

By Paula Silver

Like all B'nai Mitzvot, Congregation Beth Shalom West has endeavored to ensure its connections to Israel, the Ottawa Jewish community and its own congregants. For the past three years, Rabbi Howard Finkelstein has ably guided the congregation through these commitments. Now, his voice is joined by that of Cantor Daniel Benlolo.

Twenty years ago, Benlolo, one of 12 children, moved with his family from Casablanca, Morocco, to Montreal. A member of the Portuguese-Spanish Synagogue, he started his training at a young age under the tutelage of his uncle, a noted Chazzan. At 17, Benlolo became assistant cantor at the synagogue and for eight years he was the Chazzan. Three years ago, Cantor Benlolo left for Yeshiva University in New York on a full scholarship to study at the Belz School of Music. The past year was spent in Atlanta, Georgia.

In December, Congregation Beth Shalom West welcomed Cantor Benlolo, his wife Yael Suissa and children, Johnathon and Eve. While Yael completes her computer studies to become a medical-legal secretary, the Chazzan is a full-time dad. His official day begins after lunch. He teaches Bat/Bar Mitzvah classes and has formed a boys youth choir to enhance Shabbat and holiday services. An established mixed youth choir to sing at Hillel Lodge and other non-secular venues is being continued. Davening classes for adults are being instituted.

In his capacity of youth director, the Cantor has helped organize a community-wide youth sports league from all the synagogues, scheduled to begin Sunday, February 12. Floor hockey and basketball will be played. An information booth to ascertain what other activities are desired by the youth will be set up. Location and time for this opening event will be announced shortly.

For information on how to become a member of Congregation Beth Shalom West or to participate in any program offered for adults and/or youth, call 723-1800.

Gdalyah Rosenfeld to speak to Historical Society in Florida

When Gdalyah Rosenfeld is asked to speak about a topic which interests him, his audience is so fascinated he is often asked to return.

On Sunday, February 12, at 2:30 pm, Rosenfeld will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Ottawa Jewish Historical Society to be held at the Coral Springs City Centre, 2855 Coral Springs Drive, in Florida. He will speak about the history of the Jews of Canada, making comparisons with the experience of American Jewry. Rosenfeld bases his studies upon personal travels, readings, discussions and research and continues to expand the topic each time he addresses it.

A native of Montreal, Gdalyah has lived in Ottawa for the past 35 years. He retired from the department of Health and Wel-

Two wonderful films to be screened at Israeli Film Festival

By Diane Koven

The Jewish Community Centre's eighth annual Israeli Film Festival will take place on Sunday evening, February 26, at the Museum of Nature.

Following last year's most successful ever event, the enthusiastic planning committee volunteered to "do it all again"! This year's chair is Tova Lynch, a native of Jerusalem and former press photographer. Tova's photographs have been published in newspapers, magazines and books throughout the world. She has taken courses in motion picture and television production and is particularly interested in bringing the cinema of Israel to an Ottawa audience. Between stints abroad with her foreign affairs spouse, Jim, and two children, Tova has lived in Ottawa, on and off, for over 15 years.

Joining Tova on the committee will be last year's chair, Leslie Ram, Shari Ritter, Rachel Moran (Israel Program Centre shlichah) and Diane Koven (JCC staff).

Two wonderful films will be screened. The Flying Camel is a comedy set in Tel Aviv, portraying an unlikely friendship between two men on the fringes of society: Bau-man, a Jewish former history professor, and Phares, an Arab garbage collector. This film deals with serious issues through the medium of comedy. It is chock full of symbolism and presents much food for thought in a light-hearted and humorous way.

The second film, The Deserter's Wife, directed by Michal Bat-Adam, is a serious look at moral dilemmas faced in Israel. On the eve of the Gulf War, Nina, a French woman living in Israel with her husband and young son, struggles to establish herself as a musician while raising a child. Suddenly her husband is injured while away on reserve duty and, mysteriously, returns in a catatonic state. As the secret of her husband's experience is gradually revealed, Nina begins to confront the toll that the political situation in Israel takes on her domestic life.

As in the past, admission will include refreshments to be served at intermission between the two films. There will be a special price for both films and reduced rates will be available for groups of 10 or more. Mark your calendars and watch the Bulletin for further details.

Dr. Alain Goldschläger to speak at Drop-in Diner

Dr. Alain Goldschläger, national director for the Canada-Israel Foundation for Academic Exchanges, will be the guest speaker at the JCC's Drop-in Diner on Tuesday, February 7. His luncheon address will be entitled "Comments on Racism in the Ontario Equity Legislation".

A professor of French literature and Judaic studies at the University of Western Ontario, Dr. Goldschläger has held his position with the Canada-Israel Foundation for Academic Exchanges since 1988. This program facilitates contacts between Israeli and Canadian scholars and institutions; its goal is to foster knowledge and understanding of both nations. Dr. Goldschläger has a long-standing interest in human rights issues affecting both Canada and Israel and has published extensively on racism in the postmodern era. His most recent research deals with the tracing and compilation of direct witness accounts and narratives of the Shoah.

The Drop-in Diner opens at noon; the speaker will begin at about 12:30 pm. As usual, a delicious, kosher, four-course lunch is served for only $6.00. If you would like to reserve a

The Tiny Treasures Playgroup is now a fully licensed nursery school. The school offers both a junior (2 1/2 and older) and a senior program (3 3/4 and older) designed to familiarize Jewish children with their religion, heritage and traditions. The two programs run Monday through Thursday mornings, from 9:00 to 11:30, and on Wednesday afternoons, from 12:00 to 2:50. Both programs have full enrolment for this year; however, registration for the 1995-96 school year will be open as of February 1. Call Devora Caytak (729-7712) for further information or to arrange a visit to the school.

A foundation for learning in a Jewish environment

As the children play with toys and puzzles, they are surrounded by murals of kosher animals in soft colors. The process and craft room and the senior classroom are decorated with the children's own bright and colorful work and child-made murals depicting the Jewish unit of the month.

There is never a lack of subject matter for these learning units, with stories from the Torah and the Jewish holidays on which to draw. Inherent in these colorful traditions and stories are many opportunities for children to develop the pre-reading and pre-math concepts for their later, more formal education, in both English and Hebrew.

In keeping with the school's objective to familiarize the children with their unique roots, they are introduced to the Hebrew language in the Davening Circle, the brachos at snack and the vocabulary taught in the units.

Shabbat for tots

Every Friday the school holds "Erev Shabbat for Tots", a drop-in program for small children, 18 months to 2 1/2 years, and their mothers (other siblings are welcome). The program runs from 9:30 to 11:30 am and costs $5.00.

A variety of play environments are open for the children to explore with their mothers. Craft and sensory centres and simple art activities are also available. Staff is on hand to facilitate activities and the use of the materials, but mothers are expected to supervise their children.

University student mission planned for spring of 1995

On May 8, 1945, Nazi Germany formally surrendered to the Allies. On May 8, 1995, one hundred university students from across Canada will embark on a two-week program called "Anguish to Hope". During their time abroad, the students will experience the anguish and despair of eastern Europe's death camps... and the hope and promise of the land of Israel.

Included in the 1995 eastern Europe itinerary are visits to both the Czech Republic and Poland. In the Czech Republic, students will visit historic Prague (birthplace of the legendary Golem), including stops at the Altneu Shul, one of the oldest synagogues in Europe, and the Jewish Museum whose treasures were preserved by the Nazis as a record of a 'soon to be extinct' race. The students will also travel to the Terezin Concentration Camp near Prague.

sites in Warsaw, Cracow and Lublin and mourn the destruction of European Jewry at the death camps of Auschwitz-Birkenau, Majdanek and Treblinka. Meetings with Polish university students are also planned.

The Israel portion of the trip includes visits to a number of exciting locations and ancient sites, including Jerusalem, Massada, the Sea of Galilee, Tel Aviv and an extensive tour of Israel's northern regions. During its visit to the Galilee, the group will celebrate Lag B'Omer on Mount Meron together with thousands of Israelis who annually visit this mystical site.

Anguish to Hope participants will witness firsthand the miracle of Operation Exodus by greeting new olim arriving in Israel from the countries of the former Soviet Union. Briefings given by top politicians, military experts, scholars and rabbis on the ongoing peace talks, Israel's security needs and other issues currently affecting Israeli society are also planned.

A special highlight of the trip will be a visit to Jordan, made possible by the peace treaty recently signed between Jordan and Israel. The students will cross the Allenby Bridge and visit Amman, Mount Nebo (where Moses viewed the promised land before he died) and the magnificent archaeological site of Petra, an ancient city carved out of stone.

The dates of the trip are May 8 - 24, 1995. The cost is $2,895 plus a minimum contribution of $100 to local UJA/CJA/UIA campaigns. For applications or more information, contact the Travel Israel Centre (1-800-567-ISRAEL/1-800-567-4772) or Tracey Kardash at the JSU-Hillel office in Ottawa (789-6837).

The Anguish to Hope mission is sponsored by: United Israel Appeal of Canada, Canadian Jewish Congress, Canadian Jewish Federations and the Jewish Students' Network.

Peter Pan rehearsals in full gear

By Pat Neuman, producer

Tickets for the JCC Theatreworks production of Peter Pan, scheduled for March 8 - 12, at Centrepointe Theatre, are selling more quickly than for any previous show. One of the school matinees is virtually sold out, and calls to the Centrepointe box office are coming in fast and furious.

This is, no doubt, because of the universal appeal of the story of the boy who would never grow up, and on the adventures he takes the audience. Peter and his new friends, Wendy, John and Michael, travel to Never Land to meet the legendary Captain Hock and his crazy crew of pirates. On the way, they meet with a group of lost boys (who also never grow up) and Tiger Lily and her band of Indians.

This timeless classic, originally staged for Broadway by Jerome Robbins, has been a successful theatrical vehicle for many performers over the years. First and foremost, Mary Martin toured America as Peter Pan, the boy who could fly, until she was in her 60s. She has been followed in this role by Sandy Duncan and Cathy Rigby, both of whom still tour regularly in this role. Audiences love the story, the music and the uplifting tone of this colorful work of theatrical wizardry.

Centrepointe audiences will love this production. Veteran Ottawa director Nancy Turner, working on her first JCC show, has remarked on the depth of talent in this cast. Some 100 youngsters auditioned (a JCC Theatreworks record) and, for many roles, the choices were extremely difficult to make.

Choreographer Val Keenleyside is clearly having a great time working with this year's dancers, while Drum Hudson, returning for his sixth JCC play, has noted how polished the youngsters in the cast have become. "It's amazing how disciplined they are and how quickly they learn their singing parts," he remarked.

The play will feature many performers who were in previous JCC productions, including Deborah Ross and Laura Pencer in their fifth shows, and Jen Waiser, Liz Ross and Melissa Grajcar in their fourth. As well, over 10 actors who have just completed a successful run of Oliver! at Centrepointe Theatre are in this cast.

Last year's smash production of Wizard of Oz will be a hard act to follow. However, many of the same production staff are back to ensure another high quality and entertaining show. Set designer Scottie Mitchell has started building a pirate ship (with all the appropriate bells and whistles). Tracey Kaye of Audrey's Costume House, who was honored by The Ottawa Citizen for her wonderful work on the Oz costumes, has also returned. She expects to wow audiences again, and is working at her new Industrial Road location putting together especially unique costumes for Nana the dog and for the Crocodile. Stage Manager Brian Schechter will be back directing the crew and will be assisted by returning props specialists Penny Koch and Ilana Grostern.

There will be five performances: Thursday, March 9 and Saturday, March 11 at 8:00 pm, Sunday March 12 at 2:00 pm, and two school matinees. Patron tickets will be available for a limited time by calling Fay at the JCC office (789-1818). Patrons who make a tax deductible donation of $36 to JCC Theatreworks may purchase their tickets from reserved prime seating areas at the regular price of $15. Tickets are also available through the Centrepointe box office (727-6650).

Deborah Ross (Mrs. Darling), Jonathon Gould (Mr. Darling), centre, and Brandon Presser (Michael) run through their parts for the JCC Theatreworks production of Peter Pan, which will run March 8-12 at Centrepointe Theatre.

Child Survivors and Hidden Children of the Holocaust Conference

Silence shattered by the unburdening of memories

By Elly Bollegraaf

"The Child Survivors and Hidden Children of the Holocaust Conference", hosted and organized by the Montreal Child Survivors Group, took place at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal this past fall. The event was open to child survivors/hidden children, children of survivors, spouses, relatives and friends.

The conference organizers drew upon the expertise of many individuals from different countries, who as child survivors, hidden children or psychiatrists had attended previous conferences. They contributed to the organizing of this conference and acted as workshop leaders and speakers. The theme of the conference was "Let memory speak - the legacy".

Over 600 people attended and, as a result of an interest by the organizers to encourage the children of survivors to attend, this number included over 150 of the latter. Participants came from Canada, the U.S., Australia, a number of European countries, as well as Israel. Those from the Ottawa Jewish community who attended were Genia Benezra, Elly Bollegraaf, Halina Gelblum, Ida Gnielaw, Nestor Hobe, Betty Steinmetz, Nick Steinmetz, Ines Vromen, Marianne Wolfe, Elsa Zilberbogen, Lea Kalin, Yitzhak Kalin, Vera Kovesi, Henry Lewkovitch, Robert Gelblum, Rebecca Hadida, Esther Schvan, Deborah Stocker and Harold Stocker.

The conference opened with a traditional Shabbat dinner. Following dinner, the singing of numerous Jewish melodies succeeded in drawing together the participants through the common bond ignited by the warmth of familiar, joyful and contemplative tunes. The congenial tone created carried through to the formal sessions to follow.

A welcome touch was a room designated in the hotel, in which Shabbat and morning services could take place, eliminating the need to walk to a shul. There were also three tours which the participants could choose, including one to the Montreal Holocaust Memorial Centre.

Following the Opening Plenary, chaired by Anita Eckstein of Toronto, at which Professors Irving Abella and Robert Krell each presented emotionally packed and thought-provoking speeches, the formal program began with the first of three workshops. There were a total of 27 workshops from which to choose.

The Intergenerational Plenary, The Legacy: the uniqueness of the Holocaust, presented to a packed audience, consisted of short speeches by the chair and seven panelists. This was followed by a lively and emotional question period.

A book display, an art display and a video watching space were also offered, and, as at other child survivor/hidden children conferences, the notice boards were jammed with personal requests from people seeking others and photos of individuals or groups taken during the war years.

There were a number of remarkable coincidences as well as prearranged reunions, where people, for the first time since the war, met others who had been in the same hiding places, partisan movements, villages, schools, or had taken the same escape routes.

The conference was a success on many different levels. As participants related their stories, the listeners not only helped to unburden the speaker of rarely expressed thoughts and feelings, but they in turn, through the sharing process, gained a better understanding of their own experiences, thoughts, anxieties and behavior. Problems of religious identity and ambivalence in identifying with the persecuted were expressed and probed by some speakers. The need to feel secure, to have a loving family, to learn to live with the loss of an extended family and parents and grandparents, and a desire for improved communication between survivors and their children, in respect to Holocaust issues, were all discussed.

The survivors were assured by their attendance at the conference that their history will not be erased or forgotten. Many who opened up for the first time about some of their experiences have taken that step which will permit them to talk about their past with their children and others. Reclaiming old memories and confronting them was difficult but also cathartic. The experience was difficult because the memories were from a time when people were alone, apart from family and friends. They had adopted an awful secrecy and never shared their secrets with others. A silence has been shattered by the unburdening of the memories.

INTERESTING INVESTMENT IDEAS

Peter Weltman
INVESTMENT ADVISOR

What is an interesting investment idea (IID)? It is an alternative to the more conventional methods of investment. Today's IID: "Labor Sponsored" Venture Capital Funds.

A "Labor Sponsored" venture capital fund is a pool of money primarily used to invest in small to medium-sized private companies. Investors in these funds receive a 20% tax credit from the federal government and provincial government, for a total tax credit of 40%.

Because of the tax credits and the generous commissions that these funds pay to investment dealers, they will be heavily promoted during this RRSP season.

Since the funds are invested in "up and coming" private companies, the potential returns can be very high. On the other hand, in a worst case scenario, (i.e. during a recession), these funds may find themselves with failed, or illiquid investments.

I am an investment professional dedicated to helping my clients realize their personal goals by assisting them in achieving their financial objectives. If you have any questions about the IID or any other investment opportunities, I will be happy to discuss them at my office or in your home. I can be reached during business hours at 562-6400. Until next time,

Peter Weltman.

SAFE FOREIGN CONTENT FOR YOUR RRSP STATE OF ISRAEL ZERO COUPON BONDS

Zero Coupon Savings Bond

U.S.$2,997

Effective Yield 8.25%

Matures October 31, 2003 at U.S.$6,000

RRSP Foreign Content Eligible

When you add a State of Israel Zero Coupon Bond to your self-directed RRSP, you benefit from foreign diversification and the dynamic economic growth of Israel.

Since 1951, Israel has issued over $15 billion (U.S.) in bonds. Israel has never defaulted or delayed on the repayment of interest or principal.

Today, the prospects for State of Israel Bonds are even better. Standard and Poor recently upgraded the nation's rating to BBB+. Israel is already an economic powerhouse; a leading supplier to the world of high tech and biotechnology products. Israel was a key participant at the recent Middle East/North Africa Economic Summit which laid the groundwork for a comprehensive peace and new business partnerships in the region. At peace, Israel will be the financial engine of an economically vibrant Middle East free-trade zone.

Zero Coupon Bonds are the ideal RRSP investment because they compound at a predetermined rate. With an effective yield of 8.25%, Israel's highly competitive Zero Coupon Bond will more than double your investment in just nine years. The investment in U.S. dollars gives you a hedge against inflation, while adding strength and diversity to any self-directed RRSP.

It's easy to establish a Self-Directed RRSP and add State of Israel Zero Coupon Bonds. For complete information, contact Canada-Israel Securities Ltd.

Science grads offered opportunity to join Weizmann researchers

The Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovot, Israel, is offering two summer programs which will provide serious science students with the opportunity to work alongside top Weizmann Institute researchers as well as learn about life in Israel.

The International Summer Science Institute, open to exceptional science students who will have graduated from high school by June 1995, allows some 75 outstanding science-oriented students from Europe, North and South America and Israel to focus on current research projects working with sophisticated scientific instrumentation.

Six students will be chosen to represent Canada this summer at the Bessie F. Lawrence 27th International Summer Science Institute on the campus of the Weizmann Institute from July 12 to August 11.

This intensive program is open to top students who will be entering university in September 1995 to pursue studies in science. Conducted in English, the program focuses on current research topics in areas such as the fight against disease, the resolution of environmental problems, the search for alternative energy sources and the development of advance technology.

Laboratory work is supplemented by lectures given by senior institute scientists. Working within small groups, participants choose subjects in accordance with their own interests.

After three weeks at the Weizmann Institute, the group shifts to a field school in the Negev where participants observe life systems, geology and climatology. In this way the very "essence" of scientific inquiry is emphasized.

The fee for the program is $3,200.00 (U.S.) and includes room and board, tuition and tours. It does not include transportation to and from Israel. The application deadline is March 1.

The Karyn Kupcinec International Science School gives senior and graduate students in the exact and natural sciences the opportunity to take part in a research program in their field of interest.

To be admitted to this program the candidate must give evidence of serious interest in research (previous experience is an advantage) and be prepared to work at least 10 weeks.

Science students participate in study program at Weizmann Institute.

The stipend given is sufficient to cover food, lodging and some pocket money. No travel funds are available. Application deadline for this program is February 15.

For applications or further information, contact the Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science (236-3391).

Tamir: a staff member's perspective

By Sharon Glube

If anyone had asked me a few months ago about Tamir, I would have shrugged my shoulders and said nothing. Today, I could speak for hours about the loving environment seven wonderful adults call home.

Each resident has taught me so much and has opened my eyes to new hopes and dreams. Together, we explore new ideas and experiences, in the community as well as at home. For example, Lee Waxman is now doing volunteer work in the stockroom of his neighborhood Weight Watchers. Michael Shiff, currently working for ARC industries, is responsible for maintaining plants on Parliament Hill and in other federal government buildings.

Brian Murray's love for music shines through everywhere he goes. In Toronto last summer, he made himself at home at Much Music. Larry Hoffman's love of nature became apparent on Toronto Island, where he relaxed on the grass and carefully observed the ducks and water. Mike Broitman enjoyed walking through the Jewish district.

I have also been fortunate to experience a Shabbat dinner at Tamir. I cannot express in words the feelings I had as I watched Michael Penso say the Kiddush and the Brachot before and after the meal. I wish everyone could share the love, warmth, encouragement and support that I observed that evening.

Synagogue architecture: its development over the centuries

By Teena Hendelman

Do synagogues look the same all over the world? Is there a distinct Jewish architectural style?

Why are synagogues grander on the inside than on the outside?

These and other questions will be addressed in an illustrated presentation about the development of synagogue architecture over the centuries. Co-sponsored by the Ottawa Section of the Canadian Friends of Beth Hatefutsoth, The Museum of the Jewish Diaspora and Agudath Israel Congregation, the lecture will take place on Sunday February 5, at 7:30 pm in the Chapel of Agudath Israel Congregation, 1400 Coldrey Avenue.

The speaker will be Hagit Hadaya, winner of the 1992 City of Ottawa Heritage Day Prize for her thesis entitled "In Search of Sacred Space: The Architectural History of the Synagogue in Poland or Spain or Canada. The models are a source of fascination to museum-goers, as an expression of Jewish identity within the surrounding culture.

Hadaya will trace the history and development of synagogue architecture using slides to illustrate the lecture. She will conclude with a close look at the striking architecture of Agudath Israel Congregation.

The presentation will be followed by a reception to allow the audience to discuss the topic over coffee and refreshments. The lecture is free of charge to Friends of Beth Hatefutsoth and to members of Agudath Israel. All others are welcome to attend at a cost of $5.00 per person.

For further information, you may contact Teena Hendelman (235-9414), Fran Pearl (726-9330) or Agudath Israel (728-3501).

According to a book on the subject by Geoffrey Wigoder, The Story of the Synagogue - A Diaspora Museum Book, the oldest synagogues to have been uncovered in Israel by archaeologists were built in the Galilee even while the Second Temple was still standing.

One of the most prominent and memorable sections of the permanent exhibition of Beth Hatefutsoth is the collection of synagogue models from around the world. The synagogue built in Kaifeng, China bears a closer resemblance to a pagoda than it does to a synagogue in Poland or Spain or Canada. The models are a source of fascination to museum-goers, as an expression of Jewish identity within the surrounding culture.

Hadaya will trace the history and development of synagogue architecture using slides to illustrate the lecture. She will conclude with a close look at the striking architecture of Agudath Israel Congregation.

The presentation will be followed by a reception to allow the audience to discuss the topic over coffee and refreshments. The lecture is free of charge to Friends of Beth Hatefutsoth and to members of Agudath Israel. All others are welcome to attend at a cost of $5.00 per person.

For further information, you may contact Teena Hendelman (235-9414), Fran Pearl (726-9330) or Agudath Israel (728-3501).

Jewish Family Services Newcomers Corner

This column will appear regularly in the Bulletin. We will use it to share with the community situations and opportunities that are relevant to newcomers to Ottawa.

Can you spare two hours a week? JFS is planning activities for newly arrived elderly Russian immigrants. A volunteer liaison person would work with JFS staff on this initiative. For more information, call Bev at 789-1800.

Would you like to host a family for a Passover Seder?

By Valerie Terkel

I know it is only January, but, as they say, "Time flies." Therefore I thought you might be planning your "guest list" for the first and second Seder. If you still have room around your table, I will be more than happy to fill the empty seats with a newly arrived family. Please call me at 789-1800.

We do have immigrant families who have succeeded, even if it took a while... Please read the following letter:

Dear Valerie,

I know more new immigrants from eastern Europe are coming to Ottawa now. Many of them are well educated and have university degrees, but are desperate to find jobs in their field. Realizing how difficult this situation is, I think there are still possibilities to apply one's knowledge and experience and fit into the Canadian job market.

Our family came to Canada almost five years ago. After about a year of learning English and working as a part-time nanny in a private home, I started to work as a volunteer in a biochemical lab doing the things I used to do back home. In a few months there was an opening and I got a job! It is a temporary position, supported by a grant, but most jobs are not permanent these days.

As a New Year wish, I would like to say to newcomers - try not to give up hope and be persistent, you will get lucky. The level of our education, our skills and ability to work hard would help find a proper place in this society.

Jewish Family Services news

Elizabeth Budai, our immigrant counsellor, will have a workshop for newcomers on March 19, 1995. Her guest will be Steven Greenberg, a lawyer, who will talk about basic Canadian legal issues, such as landlord-tenant contracts, family violence, child abuse and separation. Welcome every newcomer!

CITY INFORMATION

Information

Ottawa's Winter Rule of the Road

❖ WHAT IS IT?:

A parking ban which prohibits all vehicles from parking on any street between 1 am and 7 am. (Residential permit holders are excluded).

❖ WHEN DOES IT GO INTO EFFECT?:

The City of Ottawa will issue a NO PARKING advisory through the media when Environment Canada forecasts a snowfall of 7 cm. or more.

❖ WHY DOES IT GO INTO EFFECT?:

Snow plow operations can be carried out in a more efficient and effective manner when streets are kept clear of parked vehicles. During a snow plowing operation, the City's goal is to plow streets as effectively as possible.

❖ WHERE DOES IT APPLY?:

The NO PARKING advisory applies to all Regional and City streets within the boundaries of the City of Ottawa between the hours of 1 am and 7 am.

❖ TO WHOM DOES IT APPLY?:

The parking ban applies to all motorists who park a vehicle on Regional and City streets within Ottawa overnight. (Residential permit holders are excluded).

❖ WHAT ARE THE CONSEQUENCES?:

Parked vehicles found on any street between the hours of 1 am and 7 am during a NO PARKING advisory could be ticketed $50.

Help us serve you better. Please observe Ottawa's Winter Rule of the Road this winter.

For more information call us anytime at 564-1111.

Le règlement routier en hiver à Ottawa

❖ DE QUOI S'AGIT-IL ?

Une interdiction de stationnement dans la rue visant tous les véhicules, de 1 h à 7 h (détenteurs de permis résidentiel exclus).

❖ QUAND L'APPLIQUE-T-ON ?

La Ville d'Ottawa annonce l'INTERDICTION DE STATIONNER dans les médias lorsque Environnement Canada prévoit une chute de neige minimale de 7 centimètres.

❖ POURQUOI EST-ELLE APPLIQUÉE ?

Les opérations d'enlèvement de la neige peuvent être effectuées plus efficacement lorsqu'il n'y a pas de véhicules stationnés dans la rue. Durant les opérations d'enlèvement de la neige, la Ville vise à la plus grande efficacité possible.

❖ OÙ S'APPLIQUE-T-ELLE ?

L'INTERDICTION DE STATIONNER s'applique à toutes les rues régionales et municipales sur le territoire de la ville d'Ottawa, de 1 h à 7 h.

❖ À QUI S'APPLIQUE-T-ELLE ?

L'interdiction de stationnement s'applique à tous les automobilistes qui stationnent un véhicule dans les rues régionales et municipales à Ottawa pendant la nuit (détenteurs de permis résidentiel exclus).

❖ QUELLES SONT LES CONSÉQUENCES ?

Les véhicules stationnés dans n'importe quelle rue de 1 h à 7 h pendant la période visée par l'INTERDICTION DE STATIONNER sont passibles d'une amende de 50 $. Aidez-nous à mieux vous servir. Veuillez respecter le règlement routier en hiver à Ottawa cette saison.

Canadian Friends of Tel Aviv University

Mission to Israel and Jordan

The road to peace in the Middle East will be followed by a group of Canadians in May when they visit Israel and Jordan.

The Canadian Friends of Tel Aviv University Mission, co-led by Arnold Isaacson and Yehuda Rapaport, will cross into Jordan from the Israeli port of Eilat to Akaba.

The trip is scheduled for May 17-31 and will be highlighted by "Canada Day", May 22, when the university will honor the Canadian contribution to Israel's largest university.

The mission is being planned with the cooperation of the university and will include the participation of some of its most distinguished academics.

For example, archaeologist Gaby Barkai, will conduct the group on a walking tour of Old Jerusalem. Dr. Joseph Alpher, director of the Jaffee Institute of Strategic Affairs and an internationally renowned analyst, will brief the group over lunch on the complexities of the current situation in the region. During a visit to the Negev Desert, mission members will have access to the university's astronomical observatory - peering billions of years into the past through the observatory telescope.

In Jordan, the mission will visit the "Lost City" of Petra, carved 2,000 years ago by the Nabateans out of rosy nubian sandstone. The professional leader of the mission is Joe King, who will be making his 18th visit to the region.

For information on the mission call (514) 344-3417.

B'nai Brith Canada names new director for Quebec region

The Executive Vice-President of B'nai Brith Canada, Frank Dimant, has announced that former Quebec MNA Robert Libman is the new full-time director of the organization's Quebec region.

He succeeds Yechiel Glustein who is retiring but will continue as the travel coordinator of missions to Israel.

After two months as the interim regional director, Libman has accepted an offer to stay on with the organization.

"There are many challenges that lie ahead for the Jewish community in Montreal. In light of political developments in Quebec in the coming year, we are delighted to have Robert on our team, considering his expertise in Quebec government relations.

"He understands the nuances and has a total commitment to the Jewish community," said Dimant.

DID YOU KNOW?

From 1901 to 1994, 116 Jews (18 per cent of the total) have received Nobel prizes; among them were four Israelis (S.Y. Agnon, Menachem Begin, Yitzhak Rabin and Shimon Peres), according to the Jerusalem Report (December 15).

The 10 countries with the largest Jewish populations in 1992 (according to the American Jewish Yearbook 1994) were the U.S. - 5.62 million; Israel - 4.24 million; France - 530,000; Russia - 415,000; Canada - 356,000; United Kingdom - 298,000; Ukraine - 276,000; Argentina - 211,000; Brazil - 100,000; and South Africa - 100,000. The world's total Jewish population in 1992 was nearly 13 million.

Sunny Tavel, campaign chair, and Cally Kardash, women's division chair, would like to thank the many United Jewish Appeal of Ottawa telethon volunteers. Their efforts assure the strength and continuity of our community.

Seminar on the Year of the Family

Report on the International Council of Jewish Women

By Vivian Caplan

At a conference on the International Year of the Family sponsored by the International Council of Jewish Women 150 delegates representing 23 countries gathered at Kibbutz Ma'ale Ha Hamisha Guest House near Jerusalem where speakers discussed various aspects of family life.

Some of the major issues addressed by the speakers and in subsequent discussion were the effects of child abuse, wife abuse and drug and alcohol abuse.

There are several family counselling institutions in Israel, one of which, the Israel Family Counselling Association, is funded by the National Council of Jewish Women of Canada.

In dealing with family problems in Israel, cultural differences must be taken into account. In particular, Israel's compulsory universal army service creates unique problems. Those in the diaspora cannot imagine how involved the family is in the life of a soldier. Nearly every family has or has had someone in the army. Unfortunately, too many have had to deal with the devastating experience of losing a husband or child. Israeli families have learned to accept as normal that when a son or daughter reaches the required age they go into the army, not university or a year abroad to "find themselves".

Also examined were the effects of immigration on the family. Our group was bussed to the Bat Hatzor Caravan site, a rather primitive holding area for new immigrants waiting for available housing. Although these families have so many adjustments to make in a new country, they seem happy to be there.

The power of music was demonstrated by Aviva Stanislawski. She played recordings of seven different musical types stopping the music after each type and asking us how each affected us. It was interesting to discover how our moods changed with each type of music, from sad or melancholy to aggressive, heartwarming, emotional, happy or restless. Some experts believe that in a similar way hard rock music is harmful to children.

A general summary of the presentations reveals that the family can be discussed as a sociological phenomenon and a psychological challenge, but as we are all products of families they are very real to each of us. The family in all its various forms has been, is, and may be one of the universal experiences.

The closing dinner was combined with the opening dinner of the International Jewish Leaders Conference in preparation for the UN International Conference on the Family held in Beijing.

One guest speaker at the Leaders' Conference was Zhou Lin, wife of the Chinese Ambassador to Israel, who spoke about the extensive changes affecting women in China in the past two decades.

Gal Chadash ORT: an update

By Norma Hochberg

The following is an update on Gal Chadash; who we are, what we've done and where we are going.

Gal Chadash is the newest and youngest chapter of Ottawa Women's ORT. Translated from Hebrew, Gal Chadash means "new wave" which perfectly sums up this chapter's energy, motivation and outlook.

This group of young women has put together an agenda unique to Ottawa's growing young Jewish female population incorporating a perfect balance of fundraising and fun.

Since Gal Chadash began, the chapter has explored issues such as the importance of women's safety and defence, breast examination and women's health, and the role of today's women in Judaism.

In December the members volunteered along with Chavot ORT on its annual Christmas giftwrapping fundraiser at Carlingwood Mall. They are looking forward to participating in the Mother's Day Brunch Box project.

The calendar of events for this season includes skating on the Rideau Canal during Winterlude and a talk in March on Jewish adoption.

For anyone looking to buy Tupperware and help ORT at the same time, chapter member Sue Ruckenstein will donate a portion of all sales to the organization.

If you are interested in becoming part of Gal Chadash or would like further information, please contact Carolyn Sher-Israel, president (721-8006).

Hadassah-WIZO national leadership seminar

Helping to build strong leadership

Recently, five Ottawa Hadassah-WIZO women participated in a national leadership seminar held in Toronto.

Conducted by Rosalind Newton Enright, a life member of Hadassah-WIZO, and Fay Riback, national president Canadian Hadassah-WIZO, the participants enjoyed a stimulating program that provided an opportunity to network, share ideas and be a part of building strong leadership.

From learning how to properly shake hands, to role-acting, to developing listening and speaking skills, to expressing "thank you", this seminar ensured that tomorrow's leaders gained great personal satisfaction and enhanced their commitment to Israel.

You too can become involved in Hadassah-WIZO and share the experience of going from strength to strength. It is only a phone call away . . . 226-3850.

Israelis enjoy night out

By Yigal Birkham

Over 100 people met on Saturday night, December 10, for the first gathering this year of Ottawa-Carleton's Israelis. The event was held, as last year, at Congregation Beth Shalom West.

The evening began with greetings in Hebrew from host Rabbi Howard Finkelstein. This was followed by an address delivered by Israeli Ambassador Itzhak Shalef, which added to our knowledge of events occurring right now in the Middle East. He outlined the difficulties and achievements of the State of Israel, as it goes through the many changes resulting from the recent economical and military peace agreements.

Entertainment was provided by Ya'acov Sassi, who kept us singing until well after midnight. He was accompanied by singers Dalia Lichtenshtein, Rikki Grebler and Ezra Tubal.

Organizers for this event were Rachel and Meir Moran, Tal Maoz, and Rina and Rafi Assaf.

It would be nice if similar events could take place more often than just once a year. If more people helped out in the organizing of such an evening, then more people would have an opportunity to attend! The next event on the calendar is a Purim party. Anyone who wishes to help should call Rachel (789-5010) or Tal Maoz (825-6993).

After the honeymoon

By Abby Rabinowitz

What is sexuality in the Jewish marriage all about? How do you communicate with your spouse during arguments? Commitment and romance: what roles do each play in the Jewish marriage? Judaism offers surprisingly modern answers and perspectives to these questions.

Until March 21 there will be weekly sessions of a series called Marriage: the physical and spiritual connection. Guest speakers range from clinical psychologists to rabbis and authors. There will be discussions on various perspectives of marriage including the role of women, the get and ketuba.

Classes take place Tuesday evenings at 8:30 at École Maïmonides, 25 Esquimalt, and are open to everybody. Cost is minimal. You can attend one or all sessions. For further information contact Abby Rabinowitz (722-1353).

Mezuzah is distinctive mark of Jewish home

By Danny Narwa

There is an old story of an elderly couple who moved from Brooklyn into a new senior citizen condominium complex in Florida. Immediately after moving in, the old man called the manager and complained, "My door is made from aluminium, I can't hang up my mezuzah!" The manager replied, "Don't worry about it. We have a master mezuzah on the roof. You just plug into it!"

The mezuzah is the distinctive mark of a Jewish home. It consists of a small roll of parchment known as a klaf on which is written the first two paragraphs of the Shema concerning the love of G-d and the fulfilling of His mitzvot.

The cases for the parchment come in many different shapes and sizes and are made from many different materials. However, the main requirement of the mitzvah is that the parchment be kosher, that is, designated to be used for this holy purpose and then hand written by a reliable Sopher (scribe).

It is a biblical commandment to attach a mezuzah to every door of one's home. The Torah states "And you shall write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates." This mitzvah applies to front and back entrances, including garages and gates and every room and doorway in one's home excluding bathrooms.

The mezuzah must be attached to the right hand side as one enters. It must not be suspended but be firmly affixed at the top and bottom and be placed within the bottom half of the upper third of the door-post.

The mezuzah should be attached diagonally, the top facing inwards and the bottom outwards. However, if the door-post is not wide enough, it may be attached vertically.

Before affixing the mezuzah, the appropriate blessing must be said. One blessing is sufficient even if one is hanging more than one mezuzah at the same time. If a mezuzah should fall off or if one removes it to paint, for example, one should make another blessing upon reaffixing it.

Upon moving into a new house or an apartment outside the land of Israel, one has 30 days in which to affix mezuzot. If one rents a dwelling with a non-Jewish roommate, one must affix a mezuzah to his or her own bedroom, but all other rooms are exempt. When one moves out of his or her house or apartment and it is to be occupied by another Jew, one must not remove the mezuzot, but rather leave them behind and have the new occupant pay for them. One's own office or store or place of business should have a mezuzah.

In a place where it is possible that a mezuzah could be stolen, one can make a groove in the door-post and insert the mezuzah in it. However, this groove must not be more than a handbreadth deep. If this is not possible the mezuzah can also be attached to the right door-post (not the wall) inside the house in a vertical position - common in apartment buildings because of vandalism. However, it must not be more than four inches away from the door; this will make it invalid.

The mezuzot of a private residence should be checked by a sopher at least twice in seven years, and those of a public building should be checked at least twice in 50 years. In either case, when replacing the mezuzot on the door-post the appropriate blessing should be said.

The letters Shin, Dalet and Yud which spells Sh-a-dai, G-d's name, are written on the back of the mezuzah. When the mezuzah is rolled and put into its case, these letters should be facing the front. To protect the mezuzah from rain and dust, it is wise to wrap the klaf in plastic, like saran wrap, before putting it into its case.

As one enters or leaves, it is proper to touch the mezuzah with one's fingers and then kiss them. The purpose is to be reminded of G-d's name, His love for the Jewish people, and that He is the One who watches over their houses.

Synagogue Coalition enjoys Israella Singers Chanukah performance

On December 4, Ottawa's Israella Singers performed in Cornwall for a Chanukah celebration of the North Country Synagogue Coalition.

The coalition represents seven small synagogues from the following communities: Lake Placid, Tupper Lake, Malone, Ogdensburg, Massena, Gouverneurs, Potsdam and Cornwall. It was formed three years ago to bring together the families of these synagogues to foster Jewish culture and traditions through holiday and educational programs. Each member synagogue takes a turn hosting special holiday events. A women's group was formed two months ago.

This year's Chanukah concert was the second performance of the Israella Singers for the Coalition. In September 1994, they had performed to a standing ovation at an event in Massena. The Chanukah concert in Cornwall was well attended and included many young children and entire families, whose response to the Jewish music and programming was warm and enthusiastic. Many of those present were making plans to come to Ottawa for the Israella Singers' Cafe Sabra concert on March 18.

A Chanukah party, Tamir style

By Nancy Fryer, group home team leader

Once again family, board members, friends, advocates, volunteers and staff gathered at Tamir's group home to celebrate the Festival of Lights.

Each year the residents delight in being surrounded by all these welcome visitors and one cannot help but sense the overall feelings of mutual warmth and respect. Following tradition, resident Michael Penso and his father, Jerry, recited the blessings and kindled the lights on this second evening of the festival.

A delicious buffet was enjoyed by all and, after discussing Chanukah with each of the residents and what it was they enjoyed the most, the response was unanimous. You guessed it - the latkes!

Of course, the celebration would not be complete without an exchange of gifts and the opportunity each year to acknowledge with much appreciation the many volunteers. Tamir resident Michael Broitman and president Rona Shaffran-Tannenbaum presented gift baskets prepared by the residents and staff to each volunteer. A special moment indeed, in celebration of Chevrah and Chanukah, Tamir style!

WOMEN'S ISSUES

Two decades after planting seeds, Jewish feminism transforms community

Jewish feminism in the 90s

NEW YORK (JTA) — More than two decades after planting its first seeds, Jewish feminism has transformed Jewish life.

What began as the demand by women for access to positions of power in the organized American Jewish world has evolved into a movement that has permeated all aspects of Jewish communal and religious life.

Not only are women changing Jewish tradition by bringing their voices and experiences to it, but they are becoming deeply connected to their Jewishness, threading it through their lives in a more personal, intimate way than some felt was possible before the advent of feminism.

There has been more success in the religious realm than the communal, say Jewish feminists.

But veteran activists in Jewish organizations point to changes there, too, including the funding of causes more reflective of women's needs.

Those involved in the movement are pausing now to reflect on the accomplishments of Jewish women as Lilith, the flagship publication of Jewish feminism, celebrates its 18th anniversary.

The coming-of-age of the magazine means that the movement has been around long enough to have witnessed and influenced an entire generation of young Jews.

Jewish feminism was born out of the convergence of two 1960s trends: contemporary feminism and an emerging ethnic consciousness.

Many of contemporary feminism's founders — Betty Friedan, Letty Cottin Pogrebin, Phyllis Chesler and Bella Abzug — are Jewish. Gloria Steinem has a Jewish father.

The reason for such a high level of Jewish involvement is that "a sense of justice is mother's milk for us" as Jews, said Pogrebin, a founder of Ms. magazine, an author and activist in left-wing Jewish politics.

"When we woke up in the 60s and 70s to our own status as women, we were natural fighters, just like Jews in the civil rights movement," she said.

The founding mothers of feminism shaped a movement which at first had no explicit ethnic or religious component and was based on their experiences as mostly white, middle-class women.

But in the late 1960s and early 1970s, as ethnic identity became part of the American vernacular, two important trends emerged that helped shape what became a more specifically Jewish feminism.

The ethnic consciousness taking root in the black community was also transforming Jewish women, making them aware of their own ethnic and religious heritage.

But Jewish women found that their perspectives as Jews were not welcomed in the women's movement and encountered explicit anti-Semitism.

Just as Jews of both genders have experienced alienation throughout history, Jewish feminists found themselves without a place that was truly their own: the women's movement was not fully including them, and there was no place for them yet in the Jewish community.

Jewish feminists were very beleaguered

According to several of Jewish feminism's founders, the general women's movement tried to portray Jewish feminists as being very selfish. They said Jewish feminists were very beleaguered.

And within the Jewish community, "anyone critical of policy was really lambasted. People felt they had to move slowly," said one.

Jewish activists of the day belonged to a broad amalgamation of Jewish groups, mostly student-led, which were loosely organized under the rubric The Movement.

Organized under the auspices of the North American Jewish Students Network, The Movement included people who affiliated with havurot, Zionist groups, even the Jewish Defense League.

Some of the women who joined for the causes became feminists in the process.

Jewish women wanted to stay within Judaism and work for change rather than leave to seek new spiritual homes in religions more inclusive of women's experience.

Ezrat Nashim (Women's Help) was born out of that quest. The first feminist Jewish women's group began meeting on Manhattan's Upper West Side in 1971, and by the following year had developed an agenda: to fight for women's access to all areas of Jewish life.

In 1972 a dozen Ezrat Nashim members, including Arlene Agus, went to the annual convention of the Conservative movement's Rabbinical Assembly and presented a list of demands for women's equality in Jewish law.

"We were not warmly welcomed," recalled Agus. But it was the "first step in a process that 11 years later led to the ordination of Conservative women."

The first National Feminist Conference was held in February 1973 in a Manhattan hotel and the second a year later.

Jewish women were beginning to think about what place they wanted to seek for themselves in the Jewish world.

"We didn't want to change Judaism, but just get a bigger piece of it," said Agus. "The goal has changed. Equality now seems like a very small part of our aspirations."

Lilith magazine, designed to give an independent voice to Jewish women whose experiences received scant attention in other publications, came out of discussions held there.

Published out of tiny, book-filled offices in midtown Manhattan, the quarterly magazine serves as an advocate of Jewish women's perspectives, a resource centre and a link among Jewish women.

The magazine is named after the first woman created by God, a woman, who, according to rabbinic sources, demanded equality with Adam.

Over the past 18 years, the magazine has devoted its pages to topics not often addressed in other Jewish publications: rituals reflecting women's experiences; the insidiousness of the Jewish American Princess stereotype; the philanthropic power of Jewish women; and women's roles in Jewish organizations.

Lilith's tiny staff fields dozens of calls and letters each week from women who are looking for information about starting a Rosh Chodesh group or are trying to find a feminist seder to attend.

Lilith's founders had two goals, according to Executive Editor Susan Weidman Schneider: to provide a feminist voice for Jewish women who were feeling excluded by patriarchal Judaism, and to provide a Jewish voice in general women's circles.

A rude awakening

The effort on both fronts, said Schneider, has been successful.

"Today we hear less and less urging to walk away from the patriarchal system, that 'Judaism killed the goddess,' and less scapegoating of Judaism" by feminists in spiritual circles, she said.

"Lilith is a real open door for unaffiliated Jewish women," said Schneider. Before the magazine existed, "each woman thought she was alone. Lilith helped eradicate some of the sense of isolation."

The first United Nations conference on women, held in Mexico City in 1975, was a rude awakening for Jewish feminists.

The concept of equating Zionism with racism was introduced to the international community and easily passed as a resolution by the delegates to the conference.

Later that year it was passed by the UN's General Assembly.

The Mexico City experience "woke up a lot of non-identified Jews in the women's movement that a whole other piece of their identity politics was being Jewish," said Pogrebin.

In the years since then, a second generation of Jewish feminists has begun to mobilize.

These young Jewish women have grown up with an integrated identity of being both Jewish and feminist, rather than struggling to mesh the two.

Published out of tiny, book-filled offices in midtown Manhattan, the quarterly magazine serves as an advocate of Jewish women's perspectives, a resource centre and a link among Jewish women.

New questions, startling answers: feminists' commentaries on The Book of Ruth

READING RUTH

Contemporary Women

Reclaim a Sacred Story

Edited by Judith A. Kates

and Gail Twersky Reimer

Balantyne Books 1994

386 pages, $32.00

Reviewed by Deanna Silverman

If ever I've welcomed a new calendar year on a high note, 1995 is the year. I did it by Reading Ruth not, as the co-editors advise, a bit at a time. Rather I plunged in, totally immersing myself in its essays, poems, narratives, memoirs, meditations and spiritual quests.

Much like the winter plunges of enthusiastic polar bear fans, the result of my plunge was an invigorating reminder of the dynamic relationship we Jews have with our sacred texts. As Rebecca Alpert writes in her radically suggestive essay, Finding Our Past: A Lesbian Interpretation of the Book of Ruth, "What makes biblical narrative so powerful is that it can be reinterpreted in every generation."

As we all know, reinterpretation depends on the questions that are asked. They, in turn, depend on the brain-power, background, experience, learning, imagination and daring of the questioners.

The 30 contemporary Jewish women who contributed to Reading Ruth are an eclectic group of academic and theological scholars, rabbis, poets, playwrights, novelists, psychiatrists and psychologists. They contend that some questions and answers, by their very nature, also relate to gender.

"Next to the Song of Songs, The Book of Ruth is the biblical text most friendly to the woman reader," Alicia Ostriker says in a brief introduction to her lyrical prose poem, "The Redeeming of Ruth." Until recently, however, commentary on it has been exclusively a male prerogative.

But how can males, however wise, understand at a gut-level women's feelings about childlessness, emptiness, widowhood, being a stranger in a male dominated society? For that matter, can males understand female bonding? Mother-in-law/daughter-in-law relationships? A woman's visceral commitment to future generations and how that relates to her feelings of dependence and independence?

In short, how can men know, beyond intellectualization, about so many of the themes, silences and Greek chorus eccentricities fundamental to the Book of Ruth?

The co-editors and contributors to Reading Ruth prove their case against this one-sided male intellectualization of The Book of Ruth by adding layers and layers of interpretation, empathy, passion and artistry to their own dialogues with the text and with the classical midrashim about it, its link to other sections of the Chumash and to Shvuot.

The book is clearly a work of love, dedication and scholarship. Whether its acclaimed author Cynthia Ozick's meditation on chesed, loving kindness and "plausible inventions", Marianne Hirsch's moving memories of her relationship with her mother-in-law or any of the other highly personalized grapplings with biblical text, as literature and as scholarship, the quality of this book is extraordinary.

Without exception, each contributor's language and, in the case of artist Diane Palley her delicate papercuts, is a unique voice. As a totality, they blend and sparkle with the brilliant energy of diamonds. Yet their insights, explanations and musings are as divergent, colorful and attention grabbing as a platter of gemstones.

Six of the thematic sections are organized around specific phrases taken directly from the biblical text, phrases such as "But Ruth Clung to Her," "For Wherever You Go, I Go," "I Went Away Full, and the Lord Has Brought Me Back Empty." In these sections the contributors discuss friendship, relationships, mourning, emptiness, loving kindness, courage, redemption and much more, attacking each topic from numerous perspectives.

For example, the psychoanalytic doctor-patient relationship; friendship between males versus friendship between females; rivalry and cooperation between Rachel and Leah; manipulation as a characteristic of biblical women; and redemption as an aspect of child-bearing.

In the last section, "Ruth the Moabite . . . Begot David" the contributors try to bring a sense of unity and completion to the book. We feel their pain and courage as they wrestle with possibly the most difficult concept of all. To quote the co-editors, " . . . a redemptive goal in an imperfect world."

Why does Jewish redemption, as personified by King David and a future Messiah, arise out of evil? Ruth, after all, was from a people born of incest and Boaz's ancestry derives from Tamar tricking her father-in-law, Judah.

For me, Reading Ruth was an exciting spiritual, intellectual and emotional rollercoaster ride. It was simultaneously enriching, inspiring, uplifting and problematic. Which of the conflicting views about Naomi, Ruth, Orpah and Boaz was I comfortable with and why? Did my discomfort say more about me than I was aware of?

Anyone - female and male - seeking to explore contemporary Jewish spirituality and to engage in the brain-testing challenge of dialoguing with biblical text couldn't ask for a better contemporary starting point than Reading Ruth. In every sense of the phrase it is a milestone publication.

The diet dilemma

By Judy Fried R.D.

A common resolution at this time of year is to lose weight and get into better shape. Unfortunately, a lot of people think that the best way to accomplish this is by dieting. The expression "I can't, I'm on a diet" is heard quite often. Unfortunately, dieting is not the most effective way to lose weight.

Diet stands for deprivation, isolation, endless and tedious. Dieting deprives your body of calories along with other nutrients. Your body senses that it's about to be starved and switches into conservation mode storing fat by lowering the rate at which your cells burn energy.

There are those who argue that they can lose a tremendous amount of weight while dieting. I agree that the scale will certainly show a reduction in pounds when one follows a diet, but what are you actually losing? It's not fat, your body is holding onto that for dear life. Lean muscle tissue, however, is more expendable. Those pounds that seem to be melting are mostly muscle and water loss. When the weight is regained (as it inevitably will be) it is composed completely of fat.

For example, a 140-pound woman who loses 10 pounds by dieting might lose four pounds of fat and six pounds of muscle. When she stops dieting and returns to her previous eating habits, she will probably gain the 10 pounds back, but it will all be fat weight. She may weigh the same as before she dieted, but she is actually fatter. The more times she follows this cycle the "fatter" she will become. Her body will require fewer calories and will become more efficient at storing those fewer calories as fat.

How many people do you know who have tried every diet available yet always seem to be trying to lose those 10 or 20 pounds? If dieting is not the answer then what is the best method of weight loss? First, we all come in different shapes and sizes, and what is right for one person may not be right for another. There are many aspects to be considered when looking at the whole issue of weight and why some people are naturally thinner than others. Your main objectives should be to lead a healthier lifestyle by eating a balanced diet and increasing your activity. Looking like Cindy Crawford should not be your goal.

Healthy eating means: enjoying a variety of foods, emphasizing cereals, breads, other grain products, vegetables and fruits; choosing lower-fat dairy products, leaner meats and foods prepared with little or no fat; and limiting salt, alcohol and caffeine.

It is also important to eat regularly. This keeps you from bingeing. Dieters often binge because of deprivation or by allowing themselves to get too hungry. Nondieters tune into their natural hunger signals and eat when hungry and finish when they are satisfied (not stuffed). Beware of automatic eating because food is available or everybody else is eating. Nondieters also don't deny themselves foods considered "fattening"; they just have them in moderation. The more you deprive yourself, the more you will want the forbidden food.

A healthy lifestyle should include exercise, and I don't mean the "no pain no gain" variety. You can become physically active by finding an activity you enjoy and doing it often. The latest research emphasizes low intensity exercise as the best way to boost metabolism and burn fat. Doing this for 30-45 minutes three to five times per week along with healthy eating is the best resolution you can make for this new year. Enjoy!

Weizmann-Perugia method gives leukemia patients new hope for survival

REHOVOT, Israel — A new technique offers a tantalizing hope of greatly increasing the number of leukemia patients who can have potentially life-saving bone marrow transplants.

Researchers from the Weizmann Institute and Perugia University (Italy) have developed a method that may significantly improve the chances for people with leukemia to receive potentially life-saving bone marrow transplants from unmatched donors.

For most adults with leukemia, a bone marrow transplant eventually becomes the only hope of a cure.

The problem is that, except when the bone marrow donor has the same tissue type as the leukemia patient, the success rate of the transplants has been dismal.

Because tissue types are inherited, ordinarily only a sibling is even potentially a suitable donor.

However, only a third of leukemia patients have a brother or sister with the same tissue type, and only 3-5% manage to find such a person among other relatives. Although the establishment of large bone marrow registries has led to an increase in transplants between unrelated individuals in the past few years, many patients still fail to find appropriate donors.

It is hoped that by eliminating the need for a very close donor recipient match, the new approach will now make bone marrow transplants available to all people with leukemia in need of the treatment. However, even if further studies support the effectiveness of the approach, it will take some time before it becomes widely available.

It's ski chalet time

By Alan Freed, CA

Winter is here and many people are spending their time at the ski chalet. Cottages are closed but don't put them out of your mind. This article discusses a couple of issues related to ski chalets/cottages and tax planning.

Lifetime capital gains exemption

Courtesy of February's federal budget, the $100,000 lifetime capital gains exemption has been eliminated. Your 1994 tax return is your last chance to make a claim. This could save you as much as $40,000 in future taxes. Now is the time to consider how best to use this tax shelter before the opportunity disappears altogether.

I have focused on some key points to keep in mind prior to using this shelter. There are others. Before taking action, I recommend that you consult your tax adviser regarding your situation.

There are several key questions you will have to ask yourself:

❖ Do you have any capital gains exemption left?

If you have used the full $100,000 in previous taxation years, end of discussion. It is also essential to know that if you have reduced your tax burden in prior years by claiming various types of investment losses, interest expenses, carrying charges, etc. then you will have limited the effectiveness of the capital gains exemption.

❖ Did you own your ski chalet/cottage prior to March 1992?

Only real property owned before March 1992 is eligible for the exemption.

❖ Has the value of your ski chalet/cottage increased over the original price?

If there is no accrued gain to consider then end of discussion.

❖ Is your ski chalet/cottage a second property?

If your ski chalet/cottage is your only property, it may be considered a "principal residence" for which there is already an exemption. If you owned the property prior to 1982 along with other property, it may be a principal residence for a portion of the ownership period.

If you have answered "yes" to all of these questions, then you may want to use your exemption in order to reduce tax on the future sale or succession of your ski chalet/cottage.

Do you have another asset which has appreciated in value? If you owned this asset on February 22, 1994, you will need to decide whether to use the exemption for this asset or the ski chalet/cottage. If this asset is going to be sold first, it would probably be the right one to choose.

Have your property's value appraised as of February 22, 1994 (budget day). This appraisal or letter of opinion of value could be obtained by consulting local real estate agents.

Compare this 1994 value against your original purchase price. The difference between your purchase price (or, in some cases the January 1, 1972 value) and the February 22, 1994 value is your capital gain.

Do the following calculation to establish your eligible capital gain:

For example, if your prop-

Capital gain x	Number of months owned before March 1992 Total number of months owned until February 1994 (You cannot go back further than 1972)	= Eligible gain
----------------	--	-----------------

erty has appreciated by $50,000, you owned the ski chalet/cottage for 24 months prior to March 1992 and still owned it in February 1994 (i.e. another two years), your eligible gain would be $$50,000 \times 24/48 = $25,000$.

Be aware that for other assets the calculation of the eligible gain is slightly different.

If the property is owned jointly, consider whether your spouse can use his/her exemption to shelter part of the gain. Let's say you each own 50 per cent of the chalet, and both of you have $10,000 capital gains exemption left. Using the example, each of you could shelter $10,000. If values remain the same, when you sell this property you and your spouse are going to pay tax on $30,000 of capital gain rather than on $50,000 (i.e. if you had not used the exemption). Together you and your spouse will have saved tax of up to $8,000.

Remember, this claim must be made in your 1994 tax return. Also, there may be other tax consequences to using your exemption. For example, your choice may mean a reduction in your child tax benefit, your goods and services tax credit, or government income supplements.

Passing a ski chalet/cottage to the next generation

If you intend to leave your ski chalet/cottage to your children upon your death, and you do so in your will, the transfer will be subject to both probate fees and capital gains tax. Will your estate have the cash to pay these and other costs? If not, the property may have to be sold unless your children have the required funds.

There are several methods to avoid this scenario, two of which are:

Gifting the property. By selecting this option, you are effectively relinquishing ownership and control of the property now. That means that your children will assume responsibility for the maintenance of the ski chalet/cottage, including assuming the mortgage, if one exists. Generally land transfer tax will not apply unless you have a mortgage on the property, but there may be legal fees to change the title and the issue of provincial land transfer tax should be investigated.

Establishing a trust. For minor children, a good choice might be to establish a trust with your kids as the beneficiaries. You can establish a number of "rules" for the trust, including who controls the place until your death.

It is particularly attractive to pursue one of these options in 1994, given that real estate values are depressed. If you intend to transfer your chalet/cottage to your children, you should seek professional advice. You also might prefer to continue to own the property, but fund the estimated taxes and probate fees on death with life insurance.

The capital gains exemption is close to extinction. You are urged to investigate how you might take advantage of it.

ART

Art Works/ Rose Ann Hoffenberg

Mark Rothko, No. 16, 1957 National Gallery of Canada

Rothko's pattern of thinking had already been firmly established by the time he began his painting career at the age of 20. He was born in Dvinsk, Russia in 1903 during turbulent times. His father left Russia in 1907 to seek a better life in the new world and after a few years the rest of the family joined him. Unfortunately, he died not long after their reunion and the Rothko family remained poor. Having been abandoned twice by his father contributed to the strong sense of alienation Rothko felt throughout his life.

Profound and irreversible changes to the art world occurred over the next few decades because of two major events. The first was the 1929 Depression which resulted in the government creating one of its more successful relief programs: the WPA Federal Art Project. Rothko now had financial security, but more importantly the introverted artist was now in contact with other artists struggling to find expression in a new and powerful way.

The second major historical event to affect the art scene was the arrival in New York of European artists who were escaping the horrors of the Second World War. The Surrealists were among these refugees who were experimenting with 'automatic' drawing: drawing from the unconscious mind to allow greater subliminal meaning. Rothko was inspired by the Surrealists and became part of a group of like-minded artists who were rebelling against the traditional art world.

These artists, who initially called themselves "the irascibles", were on the fringe of society and later became known as the Abstract Expressionists. Abstract Expressionism had two extreme tenets: Jackson Pollock's action paintings and Barnett Newman's color field paintings.

Pollock allowed the act of painting (for example, throwing the paint on the canvas) to be a major part of the art itself. On the other hand, Newman created large fields of color that were carefully planned and the hand of the artist was never evident, as seen in the controversial Voice of Fire at the National Gallery of Canada. Rothko's No. 16 lies somewhere in between these two great masters. There are large areas of red and white, but it is evident that he scraped down the edge of the white while the paint was still wet.

Early in his career he was attracted to ancient myths and primitive art and tried to incorporate these complex ideas into his work. However, he soon began a process of reduction and simplification until he arrived at his first abstract painting in 1949. No. 16 belongs to this body of Rothko's mature and classical works.

The Abstract Expressionists became internationally acclaimed and the group quickly moved from the fringe of society to the centre. In other words, they moved from challenging the establishment to being the establishment. Rothko was not comfortable in his new role because his life and his painting were now public property and he was an intensely private person.

No. 16 is a painting of tension. It is at once attractive and repellent, serene and violent, soothing and disturbing. The size of the canvas becomes an important factor in communicating to the viewer - he wanted the viewer to be engulfed by it. Color was his major expressive tool and red was his favorite. In this painting, red can evoke joy or anxiety. The white blurred shapes are almost sensual as the image seems to expand and contract. This was the last of his colorful paintings. After this they became darker, monochromatic and appeared to reflect his depressed mood. He committed suicide in 1970.

SILENT WITNESS

a film by HARRIET WICHIN

The people are gone from the landscapes now; only the buildings remain, inanimate witnesses to what happened. Yet the spirit of these places is haunting and powerful. These are the former concentration camps of WW II.

Silent Witness is a poetic non-fiction film that explores the closed-off chambers of Dachau and Auschwitz and enters the world of people who live and work on the sites today.

How should these sites be preserved? How do they speak to us today?

Reading to your child: the best gift of all

When should you start reading to your preschool child? The sooner, the better. Numerous studies have concluded that reading to preschool children promotes literacy. Recent research points to many more benefits.

Controlled studies have followed "read to preschoolers" and "not read to preschoolers" from kindergarten through high school. The results: the "read to" group members, on average consistently scored higher on IQ tests and experienced measurably greater success throughout their school years.

Apparently, reading to very young children empowers them far beyond encouraging them to learn to read. The beauty of art and the rhythm of language may seize their hearts and minds and never let go.

Similarly, exposure to the vastness of imaginary and real world possibilities may encourage characteristics necessary for later achievement such as curiosity, optimism and persistence.

From a young child's perspective the most empowering aspect of Kid Lit may well be its abundant opportunities for role modelling and self-recognition. Huge numbers of stories portray a small, weak creature - a duckling, a mouse, a child - surmounting the greatest of odds.

Board books, word books, concept books, alphabet books, nursery rhymes, chapbooks - these are the first categories of books for young children.

Story picture books come next. At first select simple stories that relate to familiar occurrences in a child's physical, social and emotional world. A bit later, add stories that go beyond the familiar, stories that stretch imagination and sense of fun.

Expose your child to a huge variety of literary formats, contents and styles. At every stage, add Jewish content. A value dimension that many of us describe as "feeling Jewish" thus becomes a natural component of the many benefits that extend beyond literacy.

And remember, the comfort and joy of "reading" favorite books again and again may be the best gift of all.

Waking in Jerusalem

By Sharon Katz
Concertina 1994

24 pages, Ages 3-7

Published as a chapbook by Ottawa writer and visual artist Sharon Katz, Waking in Jerusalem is a gentle reminder of the wonder and awe children experience when noticing simple things adults usually take for granted. Using about 60 words and two-tone computer-generated graphics, Katz makes the mundane experience of being the family "early bird" lyrical and special.

A little boy in Jerusalem wakes before dawn, walks out onto the apartment balcony and notices details of sound and light, one after another, until the city awakens and "begins to roar."

Katz's graphics are joyous. They look deceptively simple. But look again. They include lots of tiny details and a challenge: "find the lion in the book." Hint: Jerusalem is frequently depicted as the lion of Judah.

Top quality in a small, delightful package that little hands will choose again and again.

Illustrated by

Marian Goodman

Passport Books 1994

32 pages plus Hebrew-English, English-Hebrew glossaries and indexes

Ages 3-10

Although this Hebrew picture dictionary is presented as a book for children who can already read and learning Hebrew, it can initially be used with younger children, in English and/or Hebrew, for word-picture recognition.

Fifteen thousand words depict everyday objects, experiences, sights, activities and "field trips." They are organized by theme and include such wonderful ones as "in the ocean, space, human history, the make-believe castle, the mouse hunt (prepositions and adjectives)" as well as the more ordinary themes of kitchen, the supermarket, clothing, at the doctor's, etc.

Most double page spreads consist of a huge number of little pictures labelled in English, Hebrew and transliteration, and a large, colorful scene that includes all the little pictures. Kids who like perception games will take special delight in these scenes.

This book gives value for money any way you look at it. It can be used in numerous ways by and with children along a broad age span and over many years.

Expense should not block prosecution of war criminals

Canadian Jewish Congress has deemed it unacceptable that action against suspected Nazi war criminals in Canada may not be undertaken because of the cost of cases and is vigorously pursuing this matter with the Government of Canada.

"We're talking about putting a price on justice against the perpetration of the most heinous crimes in human history," stated Eric Vernon, CJC's Director of Legislative Analysis in Ottawa. "We're concerned that the funding issue is yet another excuse for a lack of action in these cases as time becomes increasingly short. If the government declines to bring criminal charges against war crimes suspects because of the Supreme Court decision in the Finta case and won't fund civil denaturalization and deportation proceedings, then Canada will have shirked its moral responsibility in pursuing Nazi war criminals. This may also signal war criminals from current international conflicts that Canada is once again a safe haven to which they can escape."

B'nai Brith Canada Executive President, Frank Dimant concurred, "Justice has no price tag, and Mr. Marchi's reported statements are unacceptable."

Assessing allocations

now either retaining significant portions of what was once a 100% Israel oriented campaign or they are asking U.I.A. to pay for local services.

In the United States, some communities have reduced the amount of money being sent to Israel. The figures in Chart D provide a sampling of U.S. communities, similar in size to Ottawa, who have reduced their UJA allocations to Israel to levels of between 27% to 48%.

The 1994 combined mean for these communities and regions, comparable to Ottawa in terms of campaign, shows that funds sent to Israel equated to 38% of total campaign proceeds.

These figures demonstrate that the exigencies of financial demands on many Jewish communities have forced leadership to reconsider the traditional 50% allocation towards Israel.

This change has been expedited in the context of a shift in the Jewish world's perception of Israel as a country that is now nearly at peace; with a booming economy; that the historic massive wave of immigrants is over; and that there remains little purpose for diaspora communities to continue financial support to Israel at traditional high levels. In Ottawa, the question has been raised as to how our community can maintain its long-standing, strong support of Israel while at the same time providing adequate funds for local, growing needs.

Next issue: continuing needs in Israel and evolving priorities in Ottawa.

Reduce fat intake without compromising on flavor

In the days where everyone is cutting the amount of fat consumed in our daily diets, we all seem to be scrambling around for new recipes and ways of preparing foods. Just because we eliminate most of the fat, doesn't mean the dishes have to be so bland that nobody would enjoy them. Here is a menu that reduces fat intake but won't compromise on the pleasure we expect from our home cooked meals.

Roasted Sweet Pepper and Eggplant Salad Vegetables:

2 large sweet red peppers, halved and seeded
2 large green peppers, halved and seeded
1 large 1 pound eggplant, peeled and cut into 1" thick slices, lengthwise
1 tsp extra virgin olive oil
1 clove garlic, crushed
Dressing:
2 tsp lemon juice
2 tbsp chopped scallions
2 tsp extra virgin olive oil
1 tsp dried oregano
1/4 tsp salt or to taste
Freshly ground black pepper
3 tbsp finely chopped fresh parsley

For vegetables: Preheat broiler. Lay pepper halves on a foil-lined cookie sheet. Lay eggplant slices on separate foil-lined cookie sheets. Stir together oil and garlic. Brush the eggplant slices with the oil and discard garlic. Broil eggplant 6" below the heat for 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 minutes or until JUST tender when pierced with a fork. Set aside until cool enough to handle. Cut into 1" pieces. Place in a non-metal bowl preferably glass. Set aside. Broil peppers for 15 minutes, turning with tongs every 3-4 minutes for even cooking. Skins should be blistered and charred and peppers should be tender when pierced with a fork. Transfer to a heat proof bowl and immediately cover with foil. Let stand until cool enough to handle. Peel off skins and cut into 1/2" pieces. Add to eggplant in bowl.

SOUP TO NUTS

For dressing: Pour all ingredients into a small glass jar with a tight-fitting lid. Cover and shake to combine. Pour over vegetables in bowl and mix gently but thoroughly to combine. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate overnight to 24 hours to let flavors combine. Bring to room temperature before serving. Serves 4.

Mediterranean Fish

1 cup uncooked long grain rice
12 oz leeks, untrimmed
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tsp extra virgin olive oil
16 oz tin tomatoes with juice
1 cup thinly sliced zucchini
2 cups small broccoli florets
2 tbsp finely chopped fresh parsley
1/2 tsp dried basil
1/2 tsp dried thyme
1/4 tsp dried oregano
1/4 tsp salt or to taste
Freshly ground black pepper
1 lb mild fish filets, e.g. sole, turbot or halibut
1/2 tsp dried basil
1/4 tsp salt
Freshly ground pepper

Cook rice according to package directions. Set aside. Keep warm. Preheat oven to 200°. Trim ends off leeks and cut all but 1" of the green part off. Peel off outer layer and discard. Rinse under cold water. Cut into 1/2" pieces, place in colander and rinse well to remove all dirt and grit. Drain very well. In a large non-stick frying pan, combine leeks, garlic and oil. Cook over medium heat until leeks are tender. Coarsely chop tomatoes and add with juice in pan. Add zucchini, broccoli, herbs and seasoning. Bring to a boil. Stir frequently. Cover, reduce heat and cook, stirring occasionally for 10 to 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Transfer to oven proof dish and place in oven to keep warm. Rinse and dry frying pan. Coat with Pam. Sprinkle fish with basil, salt and pepper. Cook fish in batches if necessary over medium heat until cooked through, 3 to 6 minutes per side. Arrange rice on individual plates. Top with vegetable mixture then fish. Serves 4.

Chewy Low Fat Brownies

1 cup flour
1 cup icing sugar
1/4 cup plus 1/2 tsp unsweetened cocoa powder
3/4 tsp baking powder
1 1/2 oz semi-sweet chocolate chips
3 tbsp margarine
1/2 cup brown sugar
2 tbsp light corn syrup
1 tbsp water
2 tsp vanilla
2 large egg whites

Preheat oven to 350°. Spray a non-stick 8x8" pan lightly with Pam. Sift together the flour, icing sugar, cocoa powder and baking powder. Set aside. Melt chocolate with margarine over very low heat or in microwave until melted and smooth. Remove from heat and mix in brown sugar, corn syrup, water and vanilla. Blend well. With wooden spoon beat egg whites into chocolate mixture. Gently stir in flour mixture. Spread into prepared pan. Bake 24 to 28 minutes until the top is almost firm when tapped with a finger. Cool on a rack until just warm and cut into squares. Remove from pan.

Olive branch bears economic fruit

Peace process prompts Israel Bond purchasing

Canadian investors are looking closely at State of Israel Bonds this year. With a credit upgrade to BBB+, the chance to invest in a dynamic emerging market as the foreign content portion of self-directed RRSPs, Israel's expanding economy, a proposed Canada-Israel free trade pact, and progress on the peace front, State of Israel Bonds are looking more attractive than ever.

State of Israel Bonds are now eligible for the 20% foreign content portion of Canadian self-directed RRSPs.

Last January the Canadian Parliament passed legislation making State of Israel Bonds RRSP-eligible. In 1994, Canadians invested more than $100 million (U.S.) in Israel Bonds.

Canadians can choose from several different State of Israel Bonds which can be purchased from as low as $250 (U.S.). The popular U.S. dollar zero coupon bond offers a yield to maturity of 8.1% and the investment in U.S. dollars provides a hedge against inflation.

Many economists and investment professionals are predicting a flattening of the interest rate yield curve, resulting in a decline in returns on long-term bonds. For RRSP investors, choosing bonds with regular semi-annual interest payments means exposing their portfolios to substantial re-investment risk - the risk of re-investing capital at the best rate possible. The State of Israel U.S. dollar zero coupon bond eliminates that risk. Because they compound at a predetermined yield, the investor knows exactly what the coupon is worth at maturity, making it ideal for self-directed RRSPs.

Peace treaties propel purchase

Canadians are increasingly looking at Israel for business and investment opportunities. Northern Telecom, for example, recently signed a three-year, $100 million agreement with CellCom Israel Ltd. to supply a nationwide cellular network for Israel.

Significant developments towards lasting peace, such as the recent peace treaty with Jordan, have resulted in a sense of confidence and stability in the region. A highly trained and educated work force has provided critical business expertise, particularly in the areas of high technology and biotechnology.

A proposed Canada-Israel free trade agreement would also allow Canadian businesses greater access to Israel's economy as well as that of an economically revitalized Middle East. Negotiations on the proposed agreement are currently under way, as announced by Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chrétien and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin when they met in Ottawa last December.

Bytown Square Dance Club

By Gary Kirshner

On Sunday December 18, the Bytown Square Dance Club was invited to entertain the residents of Hillel Lodge. Caller Bill Judge, along with five square dance couples strutted the à la main left, dos-ai-dos and many more square dance steps.

Some enthusiastic members of the audience joined square dancers Barbara and Larry Hershorn, Irving and Claire Bercovitch, Uri and Teena Goldberg, Irving and Anne Huss and Gary and Marcia Kirshner.

Catherine Cuthbert was instrumental in organizing the afternoon. Everyone is looking forward to the next "get together" at Hillel Lodge.

BBYOers celebrate Chanukah with seniors

Chanukah was celebrated in a special way this year by some of the members of Ottawa B.B.Y.O. On Thursday evening, December 1, BBYOers participated in a program at Central Park Lodge together with volunteers from the JCC's Project Keshet/Adopt a Friend program.

The teens, led by Naomi Levitz who co-ordinated the program, presented a program of Chanukah songs and filled the room and the hearts of everyone present with an infectious spirit of joy and enthusiasm.

Then they mingled and socialized with the residents. The youth showed compassion and a genuine interest in the residents of the lodge, as they sat talking and eating latkes and cake together. Residents were charmed and warmed by the presence of these young people. "It's so nice to see young faces and such nice young faces," one resident remarked.

Inter-generational programming such as this event offers both teens and seniors positive new experiences.

The Fitness and Culture Club has expanded . . . but you won't!

By Abby Rabinowitz

Are you looking for that all-accommodating fitness class that will let you get out with the kids? Are you looking for inexpensive varied fitness or art classes for your children?

The Fitness and Culture Club has once again expanded as its popularity and attendance has grown to include over 14 different classes for age groups ranging from preschool to teenagers to adults. Classes include skating, free swim, gymnastics, ballet, karate, sports, aerobics, Israeli dancing, woodwork and art. As well, there are exciting lecture series and support groups.

All classes are led by highly qualified and certified professionals. Most classes take place in the newly refurbished and fully equipped gym at École Maimonides, 25 Esquimalt. The courses range in price but are inexpensive and very competitive since the organization is non-profit. The classes are open to everybody and are very accommodating to nursing mothers and various handicaps.

Please contact Abby Rabinowitz for more information or to register (722-1353).

It's back . . . Trivia Night 95

By Pamela TurnerSmith

What is tastier, a Nacho or a Pentium chip? In how many movies did Tom Hanks star in 1994? What was the name of Nicole Simpson's "friend"?

Trivia Night, the perennial favorite of triviaholics, returns for one night only Saturday, February 25. This annual event hosted, by the Mollie Betcherman chapter of Ottawa Hadassah, again promises to provide an evening of fun.

Shelly Amor, chair of the event, has been combing the libraries, bookstores and CD Rom indexes throughout the city to provide the most unusual and interesting categories and questions. "I consider Trivia Night my own personal challenge," says

Amor. "Designing questions that make people think and laugh is what keeps them coming back year after year. That and our famous dessert buffet."

Trivia Night will again be held at the Dovercourt Recreation Centre, upper level. The centre is located on Dovercourt off Broadview. Game time is 7:00 pm sharp. Tickets cost $12.00 per person and include an elaborate dessert table and the chance to win a variety of door prizes.

Tickets may be purchased in advance through Hadassah chapter representatives, by calling Pamela TurnerSmith (820-2245) or Karen Fogel (828-2387) or at the door. Seating is limited, so early purchase is recommended.

Camel milk: more of what I learned in Israel

Ben Gurion once said, "If man doesn't know how to conquer the desert, the desert will conquer the people."

In Israel, scientists have pretty much done that. While making the desert bloom, Professor Reuven Yagil, an Israeli scientist, went further. He spends most of his time in his laboratories in the desert near Be'er Sheva in an area that none of the settlements wanted because it is near a huge crater, white and grooved "like the surface of the moon". Professor Yagil studies the habits of camels, animals that thrive in the desert and are a good source of food as well as milk.

In 1984, after years of drought, the belt of African countries around the Sahara produced no food and the people began to starve. We all saw pictures in newspapers, magazines and on television of starving children with their swollen bellies. The litres of milk per day and can reach a daily output of 40 litres. Camel milk is of very high quality and more nutritious than cow's milk. It has protein, glucose and never turns sour because it is an acid milk that contains vitamin C. If the camel does not drink for two weeks, its milk output is no lower than that of other mammals, but the milk has a higher percentage of water - a welcome phenomenon in an arid region.

The camels in Africa were perishing. Yagil went to Africa to convince the nomads to establish nurseries which would provide better food for the camels so they would not die. He taught them well and in a few years they had huge nurseries. They began to use the meat and found it nourishing. But when Yagil told them camels could produce milk in abundance, the officials in Nairobi and elsewhere insisted camels in Africa did not produce very much milk. Yagil knew they were wrong. The sight of the starving Africans left him with no choice but to help. Back in Israel he found the right hormones for ingestion and returned to Africa.

Today milk from camels is being given to children in many parts of Africa, and Saudi Arabia has also come to Yagil for advice.

Israel's concern for helping others and for freely sharing its scientific knowledge and special skills to ease world hunger is admirable. The irony is that camels are not considered kosher and no part of the animal can be used in Israel; not the meat, not the milk.

Anne and Ben Globerman

Anne and Ben Globerman Endowment Fund established

The Officers and Board of Directors of the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation are pleased to announce the establishment of the Anne and Ben Globerman Endowment Fund by their children and grandchildren. The family has chosen the Globerman's 50th wedding anniversary as the occasion to open the Fund.

In gratitude for a lifetime of love, support, loyalty and courage, their children Sandra, David, Danny and Kinneret and grandchildren Jordana and Benjamin have established the Fund to perpetuate their parents' and grandparents' names and to help ensure the continuity of Jewish life.

The Anne and Ben Globerman Endowment Fund is open ended and family and friends can add to it at any time to mark suitable occasions. The capital will be invested in perpetuity and the income will be distributed annually to charitable organizations.

Ethel and Irving Taylor add Israeli Bond to Endowment Fund

The Officers and Board of Directors of the Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation are pleased to announce that Ethel and Irving Taylor have recently purchased a $5,000 State of Israel Ivri Bond. The Bond will be added to the Ethel and Irving Taylor Endowment Fund to mark the celebration of their fortieth wedding anniversary.

While special occasions, such as anniversaries, are generally marked by friends and family making donations on behalf of the honorees, the Taylors, in their own inimitable way, have chosen to honour the community and the Foundation by giving a gift to others.

Ethel and Irving have been involved with and participated in every major organization in Ottawa over their 40 years of marriage and this gesture is symbolic of how they have always valued the importance of Jewish life in Ottawa and around the world.

The Ottawa Jewish Community Foundation wishes the Taylors a hearty Mazal Tov on their 40th wedding anniversary and many more years of good health and happiness with their dear family and many friends.

The Ethel and Irving Taylor Endowment Fund is open-ended and family and friends may add to it at any time. The capital is invested in perpetuity and the income distributed annually.
